

What We've Heard

Results from the NRPC's Regional Outreach

NRPC staff conducted two surveys during the summer and fall of 2012 throughout the Nashua Region. The first survey had 771 responses and asked two questions: (1) "What is best about this area?", and (2) "What could make this area even better?" The second survey asked respondents to choose which forms of housing, retail, office, and transportation they preferred.

- Nashua Tree Streets Block Party, September 8
- Mason Old Home Day, September 9
- Pelham Old Home Day, September 15

- Southern New Hampshire Business Expo, October 18

Major Themes

There are many themes in the responses, but a few consistently rose to the top.

Rural Character, Economic Vitality

The people of the Nashua Region tend to enjoy living in rural, quiet places that feel like small towns, but also have access to conveniences of more urban settings, like restaurants, shopping, and job centers.

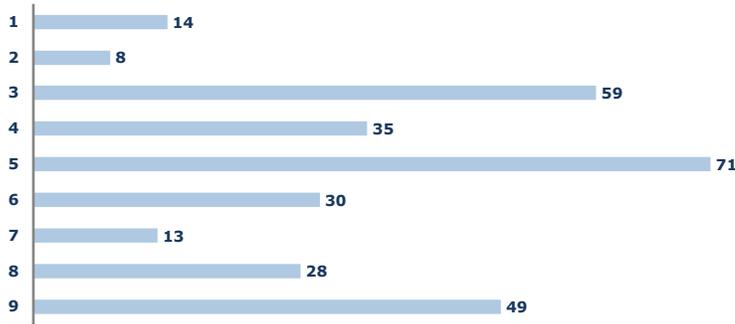

Transportation Choices

Respondents consistently expressed a desire to get around in ways other than the automobile. Adding walking and biking infrastructure to communities was particularly popular, although there were plenty of comments regarding rail and bus travel.

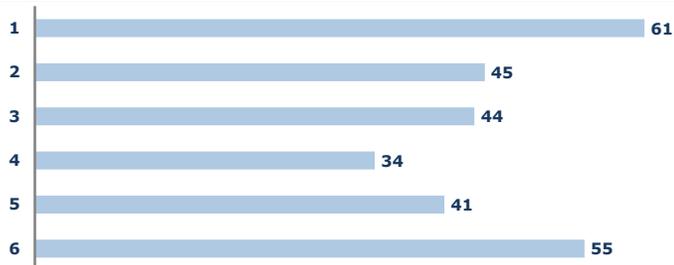

Visual Preference Survey

Over 200 people from around the Nashua Region took our visual preference survey and expressed their preferences for what they found visually appealing in places to live, shop, and work. The survey also asked respondents to choose the kinds of transportation that they prefer. Respondents selected pictures that represented various forms of architecture, site design and transportation.
